This the Advice of President Hadley.

Courts Now Having Power Should Have More

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Slowness in rate making reform and the granting of greater rights to existing courts rather than the creation of new bodies formed ing to $500,000.

The trouble does not affect the type setters employed in newspaper offices, because the 48-honr week has long heen conceded in such places. Nearly all the independent printingestablishments have also yielded to the rule, and many members of the Typothetae have likewise granted the demands of the International Urion.

Rate legislation has been the subject of recent inquiry by President Hadley.

"I believe in a sane, slow method of dealing with problems like the railroad problem," he said. "A mistake would have been made if legislation for rate making had been forced through the last Congress. Better results and better laws will come by educating the people to the real meaning of the wave of indignation which is sweeping over the counnation which is sweeping over the country. Annapolis, Jan. 3 .- The court martial which is trying Midshipman Stephen Decatur, Jr., for the hazing of Fourth-Class Men Isaac N. McCrary and Gaylord Church, heard interesting testimony resterday as to hazing methods;

Midshipman Charles S. Keller, called to the stand for the defense, said that he remembered the day the photographs of the petty officers were taken. Testimony has been given that this was the lay of the hazing, and that he had been in Decatur's room after dinner. He testified that several midshipman were there, and one of them was Decatur.

The latter statement was evidently a surprise to the defense, as it corrobor ated the presecution's testimony. He said that he saw no fourth-class men in the room and thought that he could have seen them if they had been there.

Midshipman John F. Cox of the secnd class testified that he had been in Decatur's room after dinner on the day when the petty officers were to have their pictures taken. He said that he had seen no one being hazed, and would have seen or heard it if it had occurred, On cross-examination the witness said that some one might have been doing "number sixteen" or "the leaning rest" in the closet and witness not have known it, but he was sure that he would have
